My Holiday Diary by Italia McLeay

Day 1. My family arrived at the beach. I hopped out of the car and charged through the boiling hot sun. My feet touched the water like never before. I hauled through the shallow end that could touch my stomach into the deep end. It went over my head. The salt water splashed into my eyes, went in my mouth and up my nose. So I dragged myself out for relief. I damped myself dry. Then the unthinkable happened. My brother started a sand ball fight that left lots of bruises on both of us.

Day 2. We gathered around the porch and ate fish and chips. It was delicious. The fish was crunchy and golden brown. The chips were crispy. I thought it was magnificent until a seagull came and landed on the prch. It looked left, looked right and stole exactly six chips. We had to move inside because after the one seagull came, hundreds came and invaded our porch.

Day 3. My family headed to the tramping track right next to a famous cheese cottage. It was a two-hour tramp. The whole time you would have heard me moaning and groaning because there were heaps of blackberry bushes. By the time we got out we had thorns and scratches up our legs and arms.

Day 4. My brother and I were loaded with excitement because the ice cream truck broke down right next to the batch. They gave out free ice cream the owner didn't want it to go to waste. I had a hedgehog waffle cone. It was chocolate covered ice cream with nuts. Yummy!!

Day 5. My Mum, Carol, Lauren and I got to Okahu Bay first because Mum organized it. We jumped into the kayaks and had loads of fun. Phill who is one of the instructors took Grace and I to the deep end of Ohkahu Bay. He taught us how to get in if you fall out in the deep end. Grace and I tried to get in after he taught us but we couldn't. So we got in through the side and pushed each other out.

Dear Grandpa,

Thank you for telling me wonderful stories from the past when you helped the person that got hurt in the war and how you always make a umu in the morning for White Sunday with Grandma.

Love Alani
