Carissa Taylor

Carissa started writing decodable books for beginner readers when in lockdown last year. They are a few now and they are free to download. It is still a work in progress.

Writing/Ecriture

The Literacy Shed

Although this website is in English, it was set up as a place to look for writing prompts through exciting pictures and videos. This is a great way to encourage students to use their imagination when writing. Many of the videos have no dialogue so this is a great avenue to lead students into writing in French as well.

Ortholud

On Ortholud, you can also find games and exercises to practise French grammar and spelling in a fun way.

Maths

StudyLadder

StudyLadder is the application used in class for maths. Students have their own accounts. I will be sending out their login details soon.

Sumdog

Although, I do not use this application in class, students generally love it. You will need to create an account for this.

Prodigy

Like Sumdog, Prodigy is a great app/website to practice number knowledge and strategy. You can set up an account online for free.

Learning

Quelle histoire

The « Quelle histoire » book publisher posted YouTube videos about famous historical figures.

Il était une fois...

The official "Il etait une fois" channel puts its episodes online on YouTube (with, among others, the serie "Il etait une fois la vie".

Google Art and Culture

A space to explore. The site also proposes many museum virtual tours.

Learning

Lumni

Formerly France TV Education, the Lumni platform is well known to teachers. It offers children, alone or supported, expert resources to keep learning from home and understand the world around them.

Canopé

Réseau Canopé provides educational resources for working at home. The site suggests websites with educational films, webseries, short films, and games. Some of these sites cover all of the children's school subjects, including French, math and science.

Cité des Sciences - 1 jour 1 activité

The library offers fun, surprising and intelligent activities for children and adults to do. Experiences in the kitchen, objects to make, content to read, listen to or watch ...
